THE NATIONAL EUCHARISTIC CONGRESS

KNOCK 26th-27th September - www.nec2015.ie

“But you, who do you say I am?”

Jesus puts his disciples on the spot, asking them a tough and challenging question. Look at the people around you here today at Mass. If one of them asked you that question, “Who do you say I am?” how would you respond? It would depend of course on how well you know that person. The more experience you have of that person the more your response will capture the essence of them. So too with Peter when he responds to Jesus’ challenging question. Peter’s answer does not come from anything he has read or studied. It is not an academic answer to an exam question. No, Peter’s answer rises up from the depths of him, shaped by his own experience with Jesus, his own relationship with Jesus. And so Peter responds, “You are the Christ.” Peter knows at the gutsy level of human experience that Jesus is God’s own anointed one – the Christ. It is one thing having the right answer. It is another thing living it out.

“Who do you say I am?” Like Peter, our response to that question is not just in the words we say but in the lives we live. Peter had good days and bad days, days when he was brave, days when he wanted to run away. In the end though, Peter’s life and his death, bore clear witness to his belief that Jesus is the Christ.

So if Jesus was to stop you going out of Mass today and ask you that question, what would your response be? Would you be saying – you are the Christ, you are my brother, you are a stranger, you are my hope, you are my Bread of Life? “Who do you say I am?” It is a challenging question, not meant to threaten us but to invite us deeper into relationship with Jesus.
